IMPORTANT

A lawsuit has been filed against you. You have 20 calendar days after this summons is served on you to file a written response to the attached complaint/petition with the clerk of this circuit court, located at: 201 SE 6th Street Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33301

A phone call will not protect you. Your written response, including the case number given above and the names of the parties, must be filed if you want the Court to hear your side of the case.

If you do not file your written response on time, you may lose the case, and your wages, money, and property may be taken thereafter without further warning from the Court. There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may call an attorney referral service or a legal aid office (listed in the phone book).

If you choose to file a written response yourself, at the same time you file your written response to the Court, you must also serve a copy of your response on the party serving this summons at: Kara Vaval, Esq., Vaval Law, 8201 Peters Road, Suite 1000, Plantation, FL 33324

If the party serving summons has designated email address(es) for service or is represented by an attorney, you may designate email address(es) for service by or on you. Service must be in accordance with Florida Rule of Judicial Administration 2.516. Filing # 125545492 E-Filed 04/25/2021 12:21:13 AM

Copies of all court documents in this case, including orders, are available at the Clerk of the Circuit Court's office. You may review these documents, upon request.

You must keep the Clerk of the Circuit Court's office notified of your current address. (You may file Designation of Current Mailing and Email Address, Florida Supreme Court Approved Family Law Form 12.915.) Future papers in this lawsuit will be mailed to the address on record at the clerk's office.

WARNING: Rule 12.285, Florida Family Law Rules of Procedure, requires certain automatic disclosure of documents and information. Failure to comply can result in sanctions, including dismissal or striking of pleadings.

DAILY COURT REVIEW

Women

Research. "And if they're going to come back, when will we see them come back? I don't know the answers to any of that."

Many economists and officials, including Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell, had speculated that the re-opening of schools would free more mothers to take jobs. So far that hasn't happened. The delta variant caused temporary school closings in many areas, which might have discouraged some mothers from returning to work in September. The number of mothers who were employed actually declined for a second straight month.

Still, economists are holding out hope that with increasing vaccinations leading to fewer viral cases, Friday's U.S. jobs report for October will show an increase in the number of employed women. Any gain, though, is likely to be small, and it could take months to at least partially reverse the pandemic's impact on female employment.

A major reason, Currie noted, is the worsening difficulty of finding reliable and affordable child care.

That crisis, Currie suggested, is "probably making some people's minds up for them, because if you can't get childcare and you have young children, somebody has to look after them."

Besides childcare, experts point to other factors that have kept some women out of the workforce. The number of people who aren't working because they're caring for sick relatives remains elevated. And surveys by the job listings website Indeed have found that many of the unemployed aren't searching very hard for jobs because their spouses are still working.

As the pandemic erupted in the spring of 2020, roughly 3.5 million mothers with school-age children either lost jobs, took leaves of absence or left the labor market altogether, according to an analysis by the Census Bureau.

A new report, "Women in the Workplace," by the consulting firm McKinsey & Co. illustrates how the pandemic imposed an especially heavy toll on working women. It found that one in three women over the past year had thought about leaving their jobs or "downshifting" their careers. Early in the pandemic, by contrast, the study's authors said, just one in four women had considered leaving.

"Women are even more burned out now than they were a year ago," the report said, "and the gap in burnout between women and men has nearly doubled": Forty-two percent of women said they felt burnt out this year, compared with 32% who said so in 2020. By contrast, a smaller proportion of men - 35% - felt burnt out this year, compared with 28% in 2020.

Initiative, which helped Texas evolve as emphasis shifted from chips and hardware to software, gaming, biosciences, materials science, and nanotechnology.

Even as his health deteriorated, his enthusiasm endured. On his good days, we discussed new ideas and initiatives. He was always focused forward. I had numerous opportunities to honor him of late as groups lauded his seminal achievements. Between the incessant mutual roasting, I sought to put his life in proper perspective, but likely never succeeded. I don't know that anyone could.

Texas continues to make strides, with a major cancer initiative; national laboratories; Army Futures Command; and impressive new locations in commercial space exploration, electric vehicles, and emerging energy technologies. Additional projects are progressing behind the scenes. The footprint constantly expands, but the fingerprints inevitably include those of Pike Powers.

The state will no doubt persist in its quest for global technology supremacy. No matter the height reached, however, it will always stand on the shoulders and rest in the shadow of a genuine Texas giant. Your spirit and legacy will never diminish, my brother. Stay safe!
